Risks

Default risk: There is a risk that the issuers of fixed income securities may not be able to meet interest payments nor repay the money that has been borrowed. The worse the credit quality of the issuer, the greater the risk of default and therefore investment loss.

Derivative counterparty loss: a counterparty to a derivative transaction may fail to meet its obligations thereby leading to financial loss.

Interest rate: The value of fixed income investments tends to increase when interest rates and/or inflation rises.

Liquidity: There may be insufficient buyers and sellers of particular investments giving rise to delays in trading and being able to make settlements, and/or large fluctuations in value. This may lead to larger financial losses than might be anticipated.

Where foreign securities are included in the portfolio there may be additional risks such as potential constraints on liquidity and repatriation of funds, macroeconomic risk, political risk, foreign exchange risk, tax risk, settlement risk as well as potential limitations on the availability of market information.

Hedge funds: Hedge fund strategies may include leverage, short-selling and utilise complex instruments and investment strategies with lower liquidity which may be misunderstood and lead to losses for investors.

Certain investments – including those involving futures, options, equity swaps, and other derivatives may give rise to substantial risk and might not be suitable for all investors.
