Fund Characteristics and Objectives

The Investec Large Bank Dividend Portfolio invests in JSE-listed preference share instruments of the five largest South African banks (Tier 1 preference shares) as ranked by market capitalisation, whose instruments are referenced to short-term interest rates. The portfolio may be fully invested in these preference shares, but may hold cash or near cash when appropriate.

- The portfolio aims to optimise after-tax income yield in the form of dividend income available from listed preference shares. The portfolio has a secondary return objective of generating capital gains over the longer term. Some interest income may be generated if the portfolio is holding cash and money market instruments.
- Management of the portfolio incorporates a "top-down" view of domestic and international short term interest rates, and a "bottom-up" process which include active decisions on credit spreads, liquidity spreads, yields, currency and instrument selection. The investment manager may invest up to 30% of the portfolio's market value in any one preference share instrument.

- The above portfolio returns are net of all transaction costs (brokerage) and management fees, and based on composite portfolio returns until 31 December 2012. Seeded portfolio returns have subsequently been used for performance calculations.
- The benchmark was changed in Q3 2012 from the FTSE/JSE Preference Share Index to the current benchmark because the investment universe for the portfolio excludes all Tier 2 preference shares, which makes up a large portion of the FTSE/JSE Preference Share Index.
- Alexander Forbes STeFI Call Deposit Index is a cash index.
- DWT (Dividends Withholding Tax)
