

Investec Correspondent Bank Charges

- Investec currently does not charge its customers for initiating a payment; all non-deduction charges levied by its Correspondent bank network for processing payments are currently borne by Investec
- In certain scenarios, Investec's appointed Correspondent bank or the Beneficiary's receiving bank can deduct their processing charges from the payment principal. This will apply only when a payment is executed with the charge code SHA. Some markets and/or regulations enforce the use of SHA
- The interpretation of charge code SHA varies across payment markets:
  - In some markets it indicates that the payer and the payee (or Beneficiary) will pay their respective bank charges. In this scenario a deduction would not be taken from the principal and the processing charges are levied outside of the payment (e.g. NOK)
  - In other markets, charge code SHA indicates that the payee will pay all charges. In this scenario the charges are deducted from the payment principal (e.g. AUD)
- There are some scenarios where additional deduction charges can be taken by the Beneficiary's receiving banks(s); Investec cannot control these deduction charges as these are agreed between the Beneficiary bank and their Correspondent bank and/or the Beneficiary and their Beneficiary bank
- The table below indicates where Investec's appointed Correspondent bank will deduct charges and the amount that will be deducted from the payment principal. The deduction represents our Correspondent banks charge for processing the payment; it is not an Investec charge and is not revenue generating for Investec
- If you want to know if the deduction charges will apply to your payment, please contact Client Services at clientservices@investec.co.uk or 0800 756 0828 (outside UK +44 207 597 4769) who will confirm if charge code SHA was applied to your payment
